

Panda Classroom

Young Four-Year-Old Program

Our Panda class, which is for both preschool-ready three-year-olds and four-year-olds, employs repetition, practice, and positive reinforcement to help kids develop emergent skills in literacy, language, mathematics, science, and the arts. The day is structured with preschoolers having ample opportunities to play at fun and educational interest centers, with the goal of allowing children to learn the way they learn best, through play and learning by doing. Your preschooler will begin exploring numbers, understanding volume, holding scissors, developing their fine motor skills to draw and identify shapes during their time with us. They will gain a deeper understanding of literacy as they start speaking in longer sentences and telling stories. Children are introduced to concepts of boundaries, responsibility for self and belongings, and social skills with others. Concept development includes color recognition, number identification, counting skills, shapes and sizes, and pre-reading and language development.

Ratio: 2 (teachers) to 14 (students)
